Shelter From The Storm

RELIEF EFFORT

As our nation faced one of its greatest national disasters this fall, members of the Salisbury University community offer their condolences and group efforts to the residents of the Gulf Coast states ravaged by Hurricane Katrina.

The University continues its tradition of community service through several initiatives to aid those in need. From on-campus money, food and clothing drives to opening our doors to students whose schools are no longer able to offer them educational opportunities, SU is active in regional relief efforts.

Proving that SU's alumni remain active and engaged citizens once they leave the campus, many of you are integral in providing support. Whether it is in organizing regional campaigns or actually traveling to the storm-ravaged areas with assistance, SU alumni are quick to lend a hand in this time of need.

If you would like to help with SU's Hurricane Katrina relief efforts visit the Web site at www.salisbury.edu/newsevents/pressrel/katrina/default.asp, for an overview of campus activities.

Communication. Turn on the radio or grab the remote—everywhere you look and listen on the Eastern Shore Salisbury University students, past and present, are reaching out to the community to share the best of SU's entertainment and informational offerings. PAC 14, a public access cable television station for Wicomico County, began broadcasting in 1999 and provides popular airings of government meetings and other public affairs. SU's newly expanded student-run radio station WXSU 96.3 can now be heard all across Salisbury. WSCL-FM 89.5, the University's National Public Radio affiliate, began broadcasting in 1987, playing classical music and NPR news. Its sister station, WSDL 90.7 FM, began broadcasting in 1997 and instituted a popular all-news, all-talk format last year. From news, to cultural events, to cutting-edge music, the next time you find yourself in the area tune in and let SU communicate with you!

Live from SU, It's Debbie Abbott—'On the Air'

by Tammy Gharbi '98 & Jim Hudson '94

Alumni in the Salisbury area now have the ability to visit SU without even leaving their living rooms. Debbie Abbott '76 is your guide to SU on the Air—a monthly program covering all that is new and notable at the University. The show airs on Public Access Channel (PAC) 14.

Abbott herself is well acquainted with the University as a communication arts graduate, then as a member and past chair of the SU Foundation Board. Abbott, the senior vice president and regional officer for Mercantile Peninsula Bank, was approached about hosting the show by Kim Nechay M'03, director of development for the Salisbury University Foundation.

"My first reaction was to be flattered, but I asked if someone else who was more of a natural would be better," she said.

Abbott, however, proved to be a perfect fit for the job and has hosted shows featuring such events as the Sea Gull Century cycling tour, SU Fun Day family festival, the inaugural Freshman Reader Program, Homecoming as well as the fall cultural events series, The Year of Languages, keynoted by documentary Do You Speak American? host and prominent journalist Robert MacNeil.

Abbott is quick to point out the hard work and dedication of many including fellow alumnus and SU director of media relations Richard Culver '70. Programming help comes from the editors and technicians at PAC14, a local access channel partnership between SU and the community. "I am lucky enough to get the fun part," she joked, "and that is meeting and talking with people whose passion in their area of interest shines through."

Studios are located in the Power Professional Building on SU's East Campus. SU on the Air, now in its second year, is an excellent way to get more in-depth information about the variety of exceptional programs being offered by University faculty, staff and students.

"There is always something wonderful happening on campus including many experiences you would not have the opportunity to experience elsewhere in the area," Abbott noted.

If you are interested in tuning in to SU on the Air, consult the PAC14 Web site at www.pac14.org for program listings.

TODAY

Do Not Adjust Your Television by Christine B. Smith M'03

Since the early '90s students interested in TV production have found a home at SU. Under the driving force of Jerry Kiesewetter '95 and other like-minded students, including Lucinda Bunting '96, Scott Bassford '95, Jeff Disharoon and Mike Lowery '92, "Reel World Productions" (later SSU-TV, now SU-TV) became an entertaining and informative presence on the campus cable system.

Run in collaboration with SU's Television Services, Communication and Theatre Arts Department, and Information Technology, SU-TV is student staffed and managed. In its early years, the station featured such varied offerings as the improv shows That Show and Upstaged, talk show Getting Sleepy with Jeremiah [Wilke '99], game shows and even student-produced films and music videos.

The station also serves as an important learning tool for students interested in TV production. Through the years, faculty, including Tony Curtis, Frances Kendall, Haven Simmons and current advisor Andrew Sharma, guide students from classes such as Broadcast Journalism and Producing the News in the production of various news and information programs. What began as class assignments frequently inspire students to creativity and future careers.

Student Radio Drive-By

by Jason E. Curtin '98

Back in April, I was driving home from work one evening and flipped to the student radio station, WSXU, now being broadcast off campus on 96.3 FM. In the 20 minutes that I listened, I didn't recognize one song nor did I understand any of the banter among the DJs. And it made me smile.

As a former student disc jockey and station manager, SU broadcasting across the area has been a long time in the making not just for me, but the countless number of alumni who began working for and supporting the student radio station since 1973.

According to Dr. Sylvia Bradley's '61 book Salisbury: From Normal School to University, WSSC (as the station was known back then) was the brainchild of two alumni: Steve Shriver '74 and Alan Chertok '74. Along with other early pioneers of the student radio station, Louis Schenker '74, Gary Crouch, James Turri '75, Robert Dunphy, David Finney '77, Luis Luna and Rick Holloway '76 to name a few, WSSC began broadcasting in a converted storage room in the basement of Manokin Hall. (The station would later move from Manokin Hall to Tawes Gymnasium and finally to its current location in the Guerrieri University Center.)

In those days, music, campus updates and news could be heard in the dining hall and in the residence halls. According to Dan Gladding '78, a former WSSC DJ and later staff advisor, initial broadcasting on 730AM and 107.5 Cable FM had a strong presence with both students and Wicomico County residents through a simple hook-up between a cable splitter and receiver. Now, with the new low-powered FM transmission, a simple push of a button on your car stereo will do the trick!

Over the years, the station became a teaching tool for the communication arts faculty and would eventually broadcast athletic events, music, weather reports, public service announcements and talk shows.

While the call letters have changed over the years—WSSC, WSUR and now WXSU—one aspect hasn't, the autonomy given to the students to program their style of music. College radio has always been a hotbed for independent artists and record labels. Student disc jockeys can stray from the "norm" and play a variety of music that the local commercial stations do not. The station plays music you'd expect to hear on a college scene—hip-hop, punk, rock, talk shows—all of which I'm sure not to recognize.

"We had some high expectations and goals for WSUR, and I am happy to say that the students who followed us kept those goals and even achieved some of them. It was quite exciting when I heard they went FM ... FINALLY!"

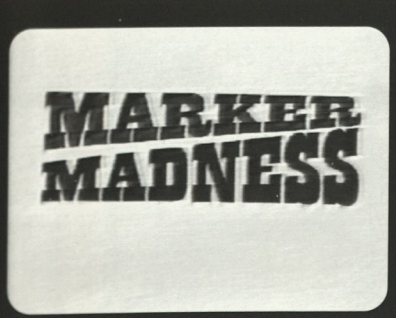
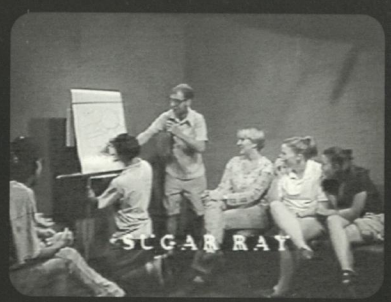
YESTERDAY





ALUMNI NEWS

Dear Fellow Alumni,

As I complete my term as president of the Salisbury University Alumni Association, I thank all of you for being part of the positive change and growth that we have experienced together over the past two years.

Many of the events and services offered to alumni have increased. I am always glad to hear about regions that wish to start chapters. This past summer, new chapters in Northern Delaware and Frederick, MD, hosted their first events. Homecoming continues to grow and change. The many special interest and class reunions are also great ways to keep connected to SU. Your response and feedback to the various events help us plan for future Homecoming and alumni events.

Changes also occurred in the Office of Alumni Relations and Annual Giving, which included welcoming a new director, Jason Curtin '98. Alumni have responded well to the phonathons, and your generosity to the University is much appreciated. Campus and community involvement also grew during this period. Be sure to come visit us again at events like the SU Fun Day and the Sea Gull Century. Being more connected to SU and our community is important.

Communication was also an area for growth. The Communications Committee, along with the alumni relations staff and the SU Publications Office, worked many hours to put together impressive publications for alumni. Effective communication, whether at home, in the workplace or in the University community, is very important. I am so glad that many of you continue to communicate with us and update us on your jobs and families.

I have enjoyed meeting so many of you during my tenure and look forward to seeing you at future events. It has been a privilege to serve as your president. Thank you for the opportunity to serve as president of the Salisbury University Alumni Association.

Sincerely,

Sara Wolff Lewis

WIN Has A New Look

By Charlie Endicott
Associate Director of Career Services

Career Services and the Alumni Relations and Annual Giving Office are constantly exploring ways to make services better for students and alumni, and we have done just that. We have transferred all of the mentor records from WIN, our previous mentor database, to our new Mentor Network. The Mentor Network was created by eRecruiting, a large college/employer management system.

The Mentor Network is very familiar to SU students because it is the system Career Services uses for on-campus recruitment and employer/student accounts. The students can now use one system to research a variety of career-related topics including Mentor Networking. This system truly is a "one-stop-shop" for students. For the mentors it provides a clear, easy-to-follow path to record their information. In addition, the Mentor Network gives mentors the option to enter more data than before and has the capacity to limit the number of student contacts. Once the mentor information is entered, students have numerous ways to search that information.

Now that the University has this exciting new system, SU needs current mentors to update their information and new mentors need to register.

For those of you who are not mentors and would like more information go to:

www.salisbury.edu/careerservices/alumni/AlumniMentorNetwork/Default.htm

For those of you who are mentors, thank you for being such an invaluable resource for SU students. Now is a great time to update your information by logging into the new Mentor Network at:

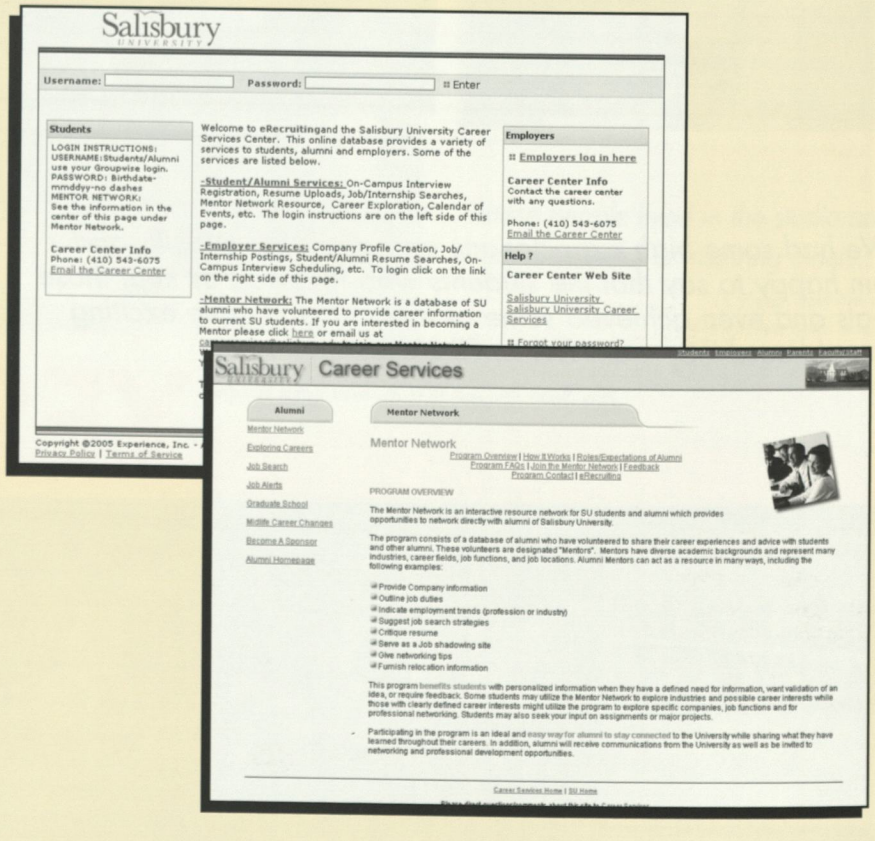
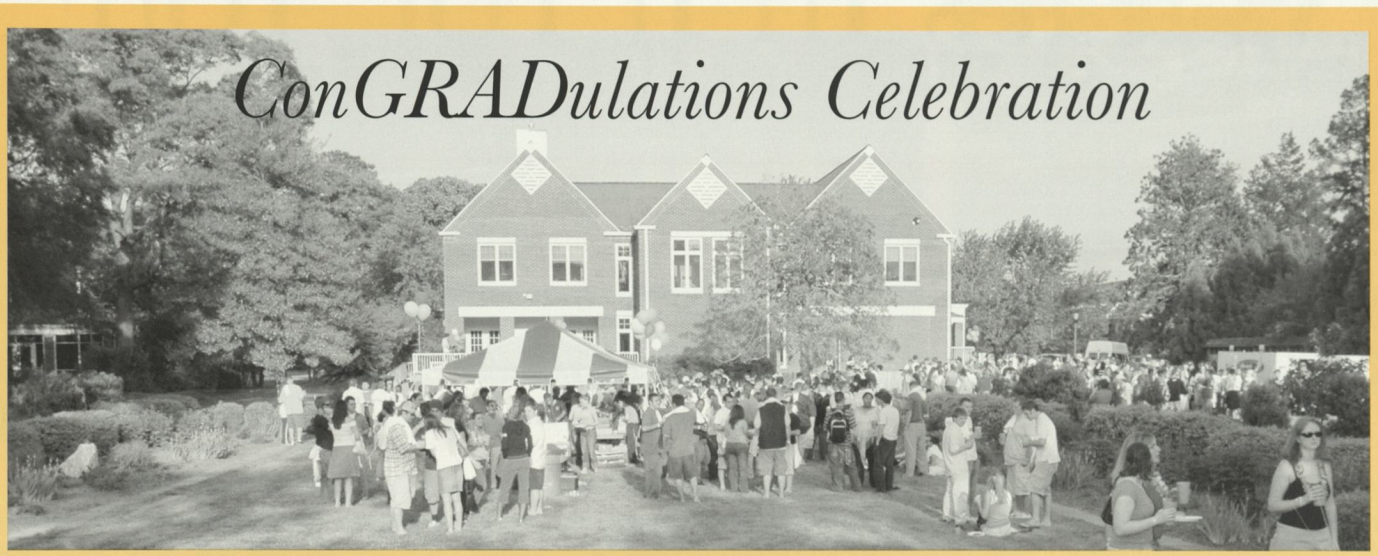
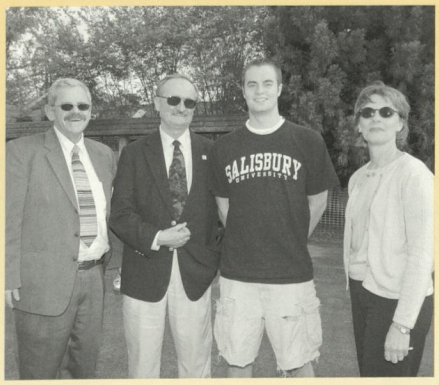
If you have questions about your login contact Career Services at 410-543-6075 or e-mail me at rcendicott@salisbury.edu.



ConGRADulations Celebration





In May, the University graduated 1,162 during two ceremonies at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Greeting graduates as they left the stage was Alumni Association President Sara Wolff Lewis M'98. On behalf of the Association, she presented SU's newest alumni with luggage tags reading "Have Degree Will Travel." This memento was meant to serve as a congratulations gift as well as a welcoming gift to the Alumni Association.

On the last day of classes, the Alumni Association once again hosted a celebration for graduating seniors in the Miller Alumni Garden. The event was a resounding success with over 400 seniors stopping in for fun and fellowship. Soon-to-be-grads strolled through the newly-landscaped garden while enjoying food and drinks. This celebration is hopefully the first of many alumni events these grads will attend. The 2005 celebration had corporate support from GEICO.

National Notice Once Again

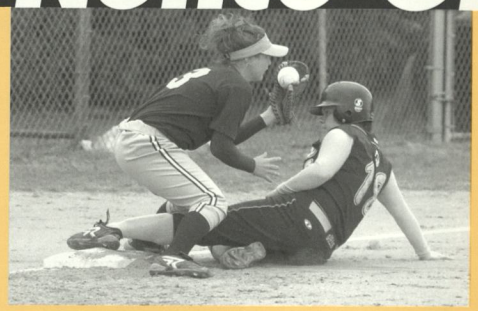
SU posted its highest finish ever in the Division III Sports Academy Directors' Cup race with an 11th place finish out of 430 colleges. The award is presented annually by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) to the best overall collegiate athletics programs in the country. The Sea Gulls were the highest ranking member of the Capital Athletic Conference (CAC) as well as the highest ranking school in Maryland in Division III.

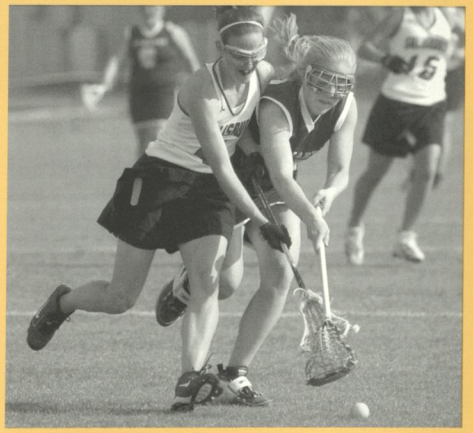
Salisbury successfully defended its NCAA Division III men's lacrosse title for the second time, defeating Middlebury College 11-10 in the heart-stopping 2005 championship. The victory gave the Sea Gulls a perfect 20-0 year and an all-division record of 49 consecutive wins. SU earned the winning goal 5.6 seconds before the final horn. More than 21,000 watched from the stands of Lincoln Financial Field in Philadelphia, a Division III attendance record.

Salisbury softball finished the season as the No.2 team in the nation, posting a 44-6 season record. The Sea Gulls placed three players on the NCAA Division III All-Tournament team.

The woman's lacrosse team had its most successful season in the school's history in 2005, advancing all the way to the NCAA Division III National Championship game. Making its first appearance in the title game and its sixth trip to the NCAA Tournament, the Sea Gulls completed an impressive season that included a school record for wins in a season and consecutive victories—reaching 17 in both categories—as the Sea Gulls posted a 17-1 overall record.

The baseball team fell in the first elimination game of the 2005 NCAA Division III Salisbury Regional Baseball Tournament.





Despite the loss, Salisbury ended an outstanding season with a 28-9-2 record.

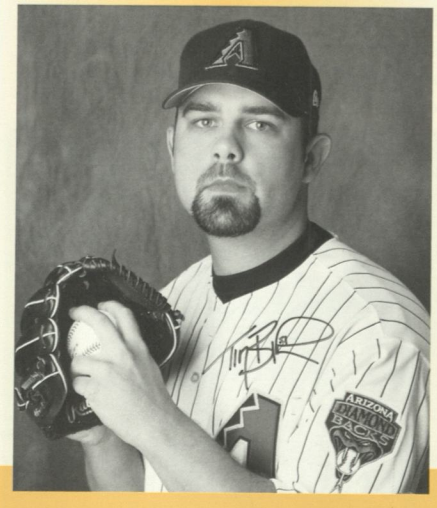
SU Goes To The Majors

Starting in 2005, former major league baseball pitcher Troy Brohawn became the newest pitching coach for the Sea Gulls. In 1994, Brohawn was drafted by the San Francisco Giants and moved to the Arizona Diamondbacks as a starter in 2000.



CAMPUS NEWS

Students Raise $114,000

Tears flowed during the opening ceremonies of SU's 2005 Relay For Life, which included the initial lap for cancer survivors, their families and friends. The survivors' lap was led by President Janet Dudley-Eshbach, whose brother died of melanoma last year. The student-sponsored Relay raised an amazing $114,000, more than doubling its $55,000 goal!

Freshman Reading Program

SU freshman looking for a beach book this summer were given the perfect assignment through the University's new Freshman Reader Program. Every new student was given a copy of Firoozeh Dumas' often-hilarious bestseller Funny in Farsi: A Memoir of Growing Up Iranian in America. Upon arriving on campus students heard a lecture by the visiting author and engaged in lively faculty- and staff-led discussions on important issues raised by the book including adjustment to new environments and living in a diverse community.

SU Research Soars

This spring, SU students teamed with NASA and Old Dominion University in a project they hope will deepen understanding of how cancer spreads and if such movement might be arrested.

Under the guidance of Dr. Gene Williams of SU's Biology Department, students eagerly watched as their groundbreaking experiment, testing the effects of microgravity on cancer metastasis, soared 76 miles into space during the University's first rocket launch at Wallops Space Flight Facility, VA. The flight and retrieval went beautifully, the payload landing in the Atlantic Ocean 20 minutes from the recovery vessel. An evaluation of the experiment is ongoing. The next launch is planned for 2006.

Regents Award SU Excellence

When it comes to excellent faculty and staff, Salisbury University is tops in the University System of Maryland. The Board of Regents made only six staff awards this year for all 13 institutions in the statewide System. SU's staff honorees represented half of the System total.

The awards, recognizing excellence in contributions to the University and community, went to SU's Ruth Baker, managing director of the Perdue School of Business's BEACON (Business, Economic And Community Outreach Network); Dawn Johnson, executive administrative assistant in the Henson School of Science and Technology; and Vaughn P. White, director of multiethnic/international student services in the Student Affairs Division.

In addition, Dr. Clara Small of the History Department earned a USM Regents Faculty Award for her tireless service to the University and community.

President Among Top 100 Women

SU's President Janet Dudley-Eshbach joins a distinguished class of leaders with the announcement of her selection as one of Maryland's Top 100 Women. The honor, bestowed by The Daily Record, a business-based newspaper in Baltimore, recognizes the outstanding achievements of professional women who reside or work in the state. The Maryland House of Delegates and the Maryland Senate congratulated the president on her selection, also noting her leadership in the community and commitment to Maryland's youth.

Three Named Distinguished Faculty

The 2005 SU Distinguished Faculty Awards go to Dr. Michael Lewis of history, Dr. Lisa Seldomridge (right) of nursing and Dr. Kathleen Shannon of mathematics and computer science.

At SU, Lewis was instrumental in founding the environmental issues major, which he directs. He also developed seven new courses, including one which resulted in a book of student essays on environmental history. An essay he wrote about this course has been nominated for a prize by the American History Association Teaching Division.

The chair of SU's Nursing Department from 1996-2002, Seldomridge led the Nursing Program in making great strides that have been felt throughout the region. In streamlining the Second-degree Nursing Program from five semesters to three, she made the degree accessible to many more students.

Shannon is chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department, of which she has been a member since 1989. The recipient of two National Science Foundation grants, Shannon has been instrumental in developing new courses and mathematics laboratory techniques for her department.

Neufeldt Leads Student Affairs Team

Dr. Ellen J. Neufeldt, SU's new vice president of student affairs, believes in building bridges: between student life and academics, between student organizations and the local community, and yes, even between her office and parents.

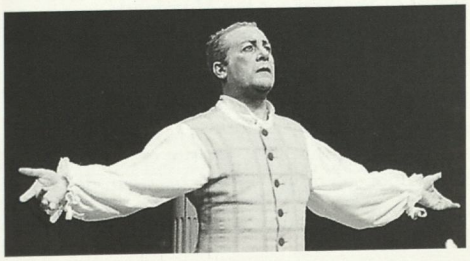
Forging partnerships is something she stressed at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga where she worked for the past 10 years, the last four as assistant vice chancellor for student development and dean of student life.

She has her M.A. in educational psychology and counselor education from Tennessee Technological University and her doctorate of education from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville where she studied the life paths of male and female college students. At UTC she also taught graduate courses in community and career counseling as an adjunct professor.

On the SU Stage

For over 70 years, SU theatre has been a hub of live theatre on the peninsula and has now gained national recognition through the Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival. Last spring, the Bobbi Biron Theatre Program was honored by the selection of three actors, Christopher Bramer, Christopher Wallace and Katie Kadell, for the Irene Ryan Acting Scholarships for their performances in Merchant of Venice. Also nominated, for her work as stage manager of the Black Box production was Jodi Fahey.

The spring 2006 season looks to be another triumph, beginning with the Children's Theatre Ensemble annual production. CTE presents an original script created by the Children's Theatre class. Performances are 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. February 3-5.



Performances will shift to Holloway Hall Auditorium for the season's fairy tale musical comedy, Once Upon a Mattress. This tuneful version of "The Princess and the Pea" by Hans Christian Anderson will be directed by Dr. Paul Pfeiffer with musical direction by Dr. William Folger. The musical that gave Carol Burnett her career start is presented March 2-5 and 9-12 with Sunday matinees.

Sophanes, the student theatre group which was founded in 1934, produces Murder at the Howard Johnson's on April 27-30 and May 4-7 in the Black Box Theatre. Directed by theatre major Adam Adkins, this piece takes a farcical turn as murder plots backfire in this outrageous comedy.

For more information about productions and to purchase tickets contact the Theatre Box Office at 410-543-6228.

SU 15th Fittest Campus

With athletic accomplishments including reigning NCAA Division III championship teams in field hockey and men's lacrosse, and the nationally known 100-mile Sea Gull Century bicycle ride, fitness is preeminent in the minds of many Salisbury University students.

Their exercise and training paid dividends beyond just health benefits. Men's Fitness magazine named SU the nation's 15th fittest campus in its 2005 "America's Fattest and Fittest Colleges" poll.

Men's Fitness surveyed some 10,000 students from 660 colleges across the country, asking questions about personal habits, as well as campus exercise facilities. Each college was graded on categories including exercise, lifestyle choices and culture of fitness.

SU is the only university in Maryland ranked in the magazine's top 25.
